

Welcome address

Dear colleagues,

Let me on behalf of the NOSTROY National Association of Builders welcome the participants and organisers of Russian Construction Week and its key RosBuild 2020 exhibition.

Russian Construction Week and RosBuild 2020 are important events for the Russian construction industry as they promote progressive practices and advanced construction technologies.

The Week's events boost competitiveness of the industry by not only demonstrating achievements of construction material manufacturers and new technologies but also by enabling face-to-face networking of manufacturers, self-regulatory organisations and government officials.

Quality development of the construction industry directly depends on the training of skilled personnel. There is a pressing need for better training. That is why NOSTROY is focused on developing the system of qualifications in the construction sector. It is good that Russian Construction Week gives special attention to this issue

I am positive that the exchange of professional experience, the profound analysis and active discussions of issues identified by the Week's agenda will help the participants to find innovative approaches and solutions for the development of the construction industry.

I would like to thank the organisers of Russian Construction Week and wish its participants to have new professional achievements and new projects for the benefit of the Russian construction industry.

Anton Glushkov
NOSTROY President
