

Welcome address to exhibitors, organisers and visitors to RosBuild 2020

I would like, on behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers of Building Materials, Products and Structures, welcome the organisers, exhibitors and visitors to Russian Construction Week and the RosBuild 2020 International Exhibition for Building & Finishing Materials and Technologies.

As you well know, today the construction industry is a driving force of this country's economy. Not only it creates the architectural appearance of our cities but also provides our citizens with comfortable housing, infrastructure facilities and other important buildings, and offers jobs to many people working many different fields from finances to manufacturing industries including production of construction materials. Moreover, the use of innovative construction materials and advanced technologies helps the construction industry to grow, increase safety, quality and lifespan of residential houses and other types of buildings.

RosBuild seeks to help to achieve these goals and show its visitors and exhibitors new developments in the field of manufacture of construction products, equipment and technologies. The show also offers many supporting events and activities devoted to the most relevant issues of the industry.

I am positive RosBuild 2020 will not be an exception. It will host fruitful discussions between the Russian executive authorities, professional and business communities, which will cover many important issues including the Development Strategy of the Construction Materials Industry for the Period up to 2020 and in the Long Run to 2030 and the Housing and Urban Environment National Project.

Let me wish all exhibitors and visitors fruitful and extensive work, constructive dialogues, new business contacts and meeting all objectives!

Anton Solon

Executive Director

National Association of Manufacturers of Building Materials, Products and Structures